1. General Ignacio Clavell, reported head of Argentine military intelligence in Paraguay, has been told by his son, Major Anibal Clavell of the Paraguayan Army, that a military coup will be attempted against the present government in Paraguay by 6 November 1949. The conspiracy is headed by Lt. Colonel Eliodoro Arce, former Commander of the Paraguayan Air Force, and includes Lt. Colonel Cesar Mallorquin, former Commander of the First Cavalry Division.*

2. [REDACTED] a military conspiracy exists which [REDACTED] would have a good chance to succeed. [REDACTED] that the situation is too confused at present to predict either the leaders or participants in the conspiracy, but he believes that General Diaz de Vivar, as a professional militarist, would head the movement. Official Paraguayan government circles are very pessimistic about the future.
